AFTERWORD

FREE WORDS 2001

1000 copies of this book are being distributed free, placed on the shelves of various bookstores and libraries across the country, beginning with an exhibition at the Silas-Kenyon Gallery/Schoolhouse Center in Provincetown, Massachusetts from July 27 through August 9, 2001.

The text is a list of something over 13,000 words, collected from 1991 to 2001. My original purpose was simply to gather as many words as I could for use in various projects. The list is now made available for others to do with what they like.

The text has been placed in the public domain (with the exception of quoted sections, see acknowledgements below) and may be reprinted, reproduced, and rewritten as desired.

For further information, as well as a downloadable PDF version, contact www.highlala.com.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The text has dozens of sources, and I couldn't begin to trace most of them. I often sat with three or four books open on my lap hunting for words. There are, however, two longer sections that are directly quoted.

One, beginning with agape on page 55 and running through zucchini on 58 is a list copied wholesale (with some oddities of transcription) from a wonderful book by the Greek Nobel laureate Odysseas Elytis. The book is The Little Mariner, translated by Olga Broumas and published by Copper Canyon Press. Though it is no longer in print, the material here is also reprinted in the volume Eros, Eros, Eros: Selected and Last Poems by Odysseas Elytis, translated by Olga Broumas and also published by Copper Canyon Press. It is used here with love, but entirely without permission.

The second long quotation begins with boomerang on page 66 and continues somewhat intermittently through vampire on page 72. It is a list of words absorbed into the English language from various other languages, and comes from a book whose name and author are now lost to me. I regret the omission.

Though I have made rather free use of these words myself, they remain the property of their authors.

Particular thanks is offered to Michael Carroll, director of the Silas-Kenyon Gallery, for his ongoing and generous support.

And to Ellen Rousseau, for too much to name.
